

Media Fact Sheet

National Lived Experience Commission (NLEC)

Status	Independent, ACNC-registered Australian charity
ABN	79 919 184 486
Executive Director	Daniel Vamplew
Website	nlec.au
Media	commissioner@nlec.au 0434 774 671

In one sentence

NLEC converts lived experience into structured evidence and systems intelligence so governments and institutions can identify risk earlier, design safer reform and make better decisions.

Why NLEC exists

People who live inside complex systems often see implementation failures before they appear in dashboards, audits or formal reviews. NLEC captures, tests and structures that knowledge for policy, governance and public-accountability processes.

Key areas

Disability and the NDIS • Housing and homelessness • Mental health and psychosocial systems • Justice and institutional systems • Co-design and lived-experience governance • AI, data and human-impact assurance

Parliamentary record

- Submission 1129 - Senate inquiry into the NDIS Amendment (Securing the NDIS for Future Generations) Bill 2026, with supplementary submissions.
- Submission 19 - Joint Standing Committee on the NDIS, Annual Report No. 2 of the 48th Parliament.
- Public evidence - Joint Standing Committee on the NDIS, Parliament House, Canberra, 11 September 2026.

Useful description for journalists

The National Lived Experience Commission is an independent Australian charity that turns lived experience into structured evidence for policy, governance and system reform.

Interview topics

NDIS reform; implementation safeguards; social housing; systemic harm; lived-experience participation; co-design quality; public-sector accountability; and human-impact assurance for emerging technology.

Attribution

National Lived Experience Commission (NLEC) | Executive Director: Daniel Vamplew | nlec.au | commissioner@nlec.au | 0434 774 671